

Michael Chriszt

Michael Chriszt is a vice president and public affairs officer in the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta's Public Affairs department. In this role, he is responsible for the Bank's communications, which include media relations, publications, websites, conferences, and outreach activities such as economic and financial education, speeches, government relations, and corporate citizenship. He also oversees the Bank's internal communications and the Bank's external website.

Prior to assuming his current responsibilities, Chriszt was a vice president in the Research department. There, he was responsible for the Regional Economic Information Network, a program designed to integrate input from business and community leaders into the Bank's monetary policymaking process. From 2008 to 2010, Chriszt served as assistant vice president in the Research department. He was director of international and regional analysis from 2004 to 2008. In these roles, he oversaw the analysis of economic conditions in the Sixth Federal Reserve District and of international economic developments.

While at Miami University in Ohio, Chriszt earned two bachelor's degrees, one in history and one in diplomacy and foreign affairs. He also earned a master's degree there in political science with emphases on international economics and comparative politics. Chriszt received a certificate of study of the European Union and is a graduate of executive education programs at Duke University's Fuqua School of Business and the University of Virginia's Darden Graduate School of Business Administration.

Chriszt is a member of the National Association of Business Economists and the Atlanta Economics Club, where he serves as the group's president. He also serves on the board of the Georgia Council on Economic Education and the United Way Advisory Board.
